

Avian Influenza Bans

Azerbaijan currently prohibits the import of all poultry and egg products, including heat treated ones from the State of Arkansas, and from any State within 400 km of Arkansas.

Products produced prior to July 9, 2008 are exempt. However, special certification related to product date is likely required.

H1N1 Bans

Azerbaijan currently prohibits the import of all pork products from the United States. It is not confirmed if the prohibition covers heat-treated products, nor products derived from other species. If an exporter is seeking to export any animal-origin product (not intended for human consumption) to Azerbaijan, they should first have their importer confirm with competent authorities in Azerbaijan that the product is still permitted. Questions about meat for human consumption should be directed to the U.S. Food Safety and Inspection Service.
