

H1N1 Bans

Transdnistria currently prohibits the import of all animal origin products from the United States. If an exporter is seeking to export any animal-origin product (not intended for human consumption) to Transdnistria and thinks that there is a special exception for their product, they should first have their importer confirm with competent authorities in Transdnistria that the product will be permitted entry. Questions about meat for human consumption should be directed to the U.S. Food Safety and Inspection Service.